Poor Conduct Policy

Poor conduct and behaviour from members toward members of the Trust staff can have potentially serious consequences on the health and wellbeing of individuals.

Employees of the Trust and its service providers have a commitment to respect all members and treat them fairly and equally. The Trust requests the same from members.

Poor conduct of members while dealing with the Trust and its service providers can have serious consequences. While some breaches may be relatively minor, if they happen on a regular basis despite warning from Trust Officers, they may be considered to be a serious breach or a very serious breach.

The Trust Executive Office will keep a Poor Conduct Register that will be provided to the Trust Advisory Council at every meeting. If a member reaches 6 points, they will be advised by the Trustee in writing of their 6-month suspension from receiving assistance of the Trust.
